2 Commitment to Training

2.1 Newington Parish Council is committed to the ongoing training and development of all Councillors and employees to enable them to make the most effective contribution to the Council's aims and objectives in providing the highest quality representation and services for the people of the village.

2.2 According to the Chartered Institute of Personnel and Development (2007), training can be defined as:

"A planned process to develop the abilities of the individual and to satisfy current and future needs of the organisation." Learning and development describes the formal, ongoing efforts that are made within organizations to improve the performance and self-fulfilment of their employees and in our case members (i.e. Councillors) through a variety of educational methods and programs. In the modern local government, these efforts have taken on a broad range of applications—from instruction in highly specific job skills to long-term professional development. In recent years, training and development has emerged as a formal business function, an integral element of strategy, and a recognized profession with distinct theories and methodologies. More and more companies of all sizes have embraced "continual learning" and other aspects of training and development as a means of promoting employee growth and acquiring a highly skilled work force.

2.3 Newington Parish Council recognises that its most important resource is its Members and officers and is committed to encouraging both Members and officers to enhance their knowledge and qualifications through further training. Some training is necessary to ensure compliance with all legal and statutory requirements.

2.4 The Council expects senior and specialist officers to undertake a programme of continuing professional development (CPD) in line with the requirements of their requisite professional bodies.

2.5 Providing training yields a number of benefits:

- Improves the quality of the services and facilities that Newington Parish Council provides;
- Enables the organisation to achieve its corporate aims and objectives;
- Improves the skills base of the employees and members;
- Produces confident, highly qualified staff working as part of an effective and efficient team; and
- Demonstrates that the employees are valued.

2.6 Training and development will be achieved by including a realistic financial allocation for training and development in the annual budget, as well as taking advantage of any relevant partnership or in-house provision available.

2.7 The process of development is as follows:

1. Training needs should be identified by considering the overall objectives of the organisation, as well as individual requirements.
2. Planning and organising training to meet those specific needs.
3. Evaluating the effectiveness of training.

3 The Identification of Training Needs

3.1 Employees will be asked to identify their development needs with advice from their line manager during their annual appraisal or regular meetings with their line manager. There are number of additional ways that the training needs of staff may be recognised:

3.1 Members will be asked to identify their development needs with advice from the appropriate body or person: i.e. committee or nominated Learning & Development Officer during their periodic development review or regular meetings with the Learning and Development officer. There are number of additional ways that the training needs of Members may be recognised:

- Questionnaires

4 Corporate Training

Employees will be required to attend training courses, workshops or seminars where suitable training is identified.
